PLANET MILLS GONE. WILLIE HELD FOR HOMICIDE.

A Terrible Fire and Panic in the Early Morning.

The Lives of Hundreds of Women and Children in Peril.

An Explosion Lends Additional Terror to the Situation.

The 300 hands who work from sunset to sun-rise in the big Planet Carpet Mills in Brooklyn. on President street, near Hoyt, were returning from their lunch to their nightly labor at half an hour, after midnight this morning.

The mill is a protected industry and it affords little boys and girls from ten to fourteen years old an opportunity to work all night for $4.50 a week, the hours of labor being from 6.15 o'clock in the evening, till 6.45 oclock in the

They have all day to sleep. These children. and many young women and matrons, and a few men, were going back to their toil in the darkness of the night under the flaring lamps of the mill, and the machinery was already beginning to whirl when they heard a word that startled them and made them even paler than ning to whirl when they heard a word that startled them and made them even paler than usual.

The word came to the four stories through the elevator shaft. It was not very loud, but it was Fire?

The mill was a vast structure, four stories in height, built almost as solidly as a prison and extending from street to street.

It was full of machinery and of jute. Jute is very combustible. It sometimes takes fire spontaneously on shipboard at see and burns the ship and roasts the crew. The fire had broken out in the basement, probably starting in the jute, and it was burning towards the top floor, where 200 of the night workers were!

About twenty employees were working in the first story in the bratching and weaving room. They ran from the flames and escaped through the doors and windows. The second and third stories, occupied by the carding and spinning rooms, had no workmen in them. In the elashing department, in the fourth story, the 200 women, children and men started to run downstairs, almost panic-stricken.

Supt. Creighton, of the factory, met them at the top of the stairs and ordered them back, saying that escape had been cut off below.

They then ran to the windows. They could hear the flames roaring below them.

They crowded upon the ire-escapes, of which, fortunately, there were four in front of the building.

The foremest of the fugitives climbed down the fire-escapes as far as the first story and found that the lower part of the fire-escapes had not been let down.

Below them was a deep stone area, into which one might not jump without getting broken bones, and it was possible that the operative might not be able to get out of the area after he imped.

The people at the bottom of the fire-escapes hesitated.

The people at the bottom of the fire-escapes hesitated.

The fire-escapes were soon crowded from the fourth story down by a living mass of screaming, panie-stricken women and children.

At this juncture Policeman Sheedy, of the Third Precuct: Peter Finnerty and Lawyer Frang & Marrin got some planking and raised it to one of the fire-escapes.

The operatives rolled down the plank and were caught by the young lawyer and the policeman. Firemen and citizens came up and assisted the people from the other fire-escapes. Everybody got out of the building in safety.

Mamie Corbet, sixteen years old, fainted on the fourth floor, but was carried to the fire-escape and reached the street all right.

The operatives had scarcely escaped from the building when the boiler exploded with a terrific report, and the walls of the building fell into a heap of ruins.

The flames leaped across President street and set fire to a four-story flat house and three two-story dwellings.

The five families living in the flat were swakened by the screams of the women and children on the fire-escapes.

They ran downstairs and found the front of the flat in a biaze and escape cut off. They were unable to get out till the firemen turned on the hose and extinguished the flames.

The fire alarm was sent from the corner of Hoyt and President streets by Policeman Sheedy.

There were three- alarms and five special

Hoyt and President streets by Policeman Sheedv.

There were three alarms and five special alarms. The blaze rose to a great height.

The heat was so intense that five firemen had their hands blistered in the street. Ten thousand people watched the fire.

The firemen rescued five employees from the machine shop of the factory, where they had been out of from egress by the flames.

Peter Finnerty, an employee twenty-two years old, found two girls hanging from the window-sill of the second story.

He drew them into the building and put them on a fire-escape.

The factory was owned by Buchanan & Lyzil. Their loss is $500,000, fully insured in New England mutual companies. Their large tobacco factory across the street from the carpet factory was destroyed by fire once before, four-teen years ago.

Among the minor buildings burned with the factory this morning was the former Strong Place Battist Church, which had been purchased by the firm and was used as a store-house.

PEPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. SCITUATE, Mass., April 12.-Henry Damon, who has been suffering from an attack of hydrophobia, having been bitten by a savage dog last October, died this morning. He suffered in-tense agony all day yesterday. Damon was twenty-two years old.

Found Dend in the River.

The body of Patrick Osborne, a bartender, formerly employed at 67 Laight street, Jersey City, was found floating in the river last night near the Erie grain elevator, below Keiso street.
It had geen in the water a long time and was greatly decomposed. As there were no marks of vicience on the body the police think it a case of suicide.

How His Life Was Saved.

DEAR SIR: I wish to thank you for the great good I have received from taking your COMPOUND SARRAPAR-BLLA. I can housely say that (indirectly) it has saven BY LIFE, for had is not been for that I feel suits that I sould not have continued to earn a itsing for myself and family. I had been suffering for over five pears with terrible pains in the head, which at times almost drove me wrany. For eighteen months I suffered all the horrors or undaria, being contined to bed for weeks at a time; tookid gas no ever, dector after doctor fried in vain; quints was useless; I get worse and worse; my hands, strus, head, &c., became a mass of sorrer, head, &c., became a mass of sorrer and the sor erasy. For eighteen months I suffered all the horrors

OF LITTLE HIPPERT.

This morning ten-year-old Willie Lutz, of 1614 Second avenue, was brought before Jus-tice Murray, in the Harlem Police Court, by officers from the Eighty-eighth street precinct, where he had been confined. charged with the homicide of little Tobias Hippert, a child five years old.

Two boys were present as witnesses. Lawrence Hessinger, eleven years old, and Herman Sancke, twelve years old, 1612 Second avenue. These boys said they saw the child Tobias on the sidewalk, and Lutz and nue. These boys said they saw the child Tobias on the sidewalk, and Lutz and several others worrying him. Lutz then threw little Hippert down on the sidewalk and stuffed some dirt in his mouth. They declared they had nothing to do with the proceedings.

Willie Lutz is a well-built, healthy young fellow, and looks strong. He has big, round blue eyes. His mother was in court with an infant child in her arms.

Lutz told the Justice that the boys were throwing horse dirt at little Hippert. He said Louis Dorr kicked and pushed the child, and that Lawrence Hessinger knocked him down. Then Eddie Dorr, running by fast, gave Tobias Hippert a shove so that he fell down some basement stairs at 1612 Second avenue.

He came up feeling his stomach, and said he was hurt. He was not crying, Lutz says. Then he went into his house, and his mother methim. He didn't go home with Tobias.

Justice Murray dismissed Hessinger and Lancke, and gave Lutz into the charge of Mr. G. Grant, the officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The Nociety will keep the child until the Coroner has investigated the case.

The Eventso World reporter saw Coroner Levy this morning at the Hipperts', 1614 Second avenue. Coroner Levy lead come up to examine the body of the tiny victim.

'I shall send my physician, Dr. Jenkins, up here to make an autopsy, he said. 'I shall investigate the case thoroughly as soon as possible."

possible."
The reporter found the Hipperts in a back room on the first floor.
Wrapped up in an old counterpane on the bed was the body of the little unfortunate. The cloth was removed, and his round head was seen covered with bruises. He was a small child, even for his five years. It was a distressing sight.

oven for his five years. It was a distressing sight.

Mrs. Hippert told the story without great anger, but in heart-breaking tones.

Tobias was out pisying with the children Wednesday, and I didn't know where he was, with him, and wanted him to come out and play some more. He raved that night, and cried out:

'Oh, Willie Lutz!'

'He complained' of pains in his back and atomach, and vomited. He died Thursday night about 7 o'clock. I wish it was I who was dead," exclaimed the poor mother, in conclusion.

who was dead, "exclaimed the procession."

She said her other son. Sammy, seven years old, was made sick for a fortnight from ill-treatment at the hands of Louis Dorr. Mrs. Hippert thinks the ernel persecution of her children is through race dislike.

Capt. O'Connor treated the matter rather lightly. "The boy fell downstairs, and that is how he was hurt. They stuffed some horse dirt in his month, but they think that is play. They are not Fifth avenue children."

SULLIVAN STIM POPULAR.

HIS COMING EXHIBITION PROMISES TO BE A GREAT SUCCESS.

Sullivan's coming exhibition is now a theme of general interest. Everybody is talking about it. This shows that Sullivan is still a potent attraction. Everybody will be there, and egular old-time crush is expected. People want o see in just what form Sullivan will appear. Is e anywhere near the John L. of old? That is the point upon which they wish to satisfy themselves. The sparring exhibition will give them this chance, and John shows his business acuteness in giving them this opportunity just at the present time, when his name is in everyone's

In the coming walking match at the Madison Square Garden, C. D. Colvin will attempt to make ninety-five miles and break the twelve-hour record. He has a wager of $250 that he can do it. The record is now eighty-nine miles, made by Littlewood.

It is almost a certainty that Paddy Duffy, of Boston, will fight Billy McMillan, of Washington. The battle will probably be made for $500 a side and a purse of $1,000. W. E. Harding, of the Police Gazette, has the affair in charge. It will be remembered that Duffy and McMillan fought near Washington last October. Duffy won, but it was claimed, and not without reason, that the water given McMillan was polsoned. It is possible the fight will take place within one hundred miles of New York.

President J. E. Sullivan, of the Pastime Athletic Club, wishes it distinctly understood that there is positively no fighting between different members of the club. He desires the impression to prevail that all are as smiling as so many baskets of chips.

The first Saturday in October of each year has been settled upon for the National Cross-Country Team Champiouship. The entrance fee is $10 for non-associated clubs and $5 for associated. The first six members of the winning team will each receive a gold medal set with a diamond; the first six members of the second team, gold medals; the first six members of the third team, silver medals; first six of the fourth, bronze. The actual winner of the race receives a silver cup, emblematical of the individual championship of the association, irrespective of the position of his club.

Entries for the annual amateur boxing and wreatling championships of the N. four A. a. to be held May 13, at Tammany Hall, close May 4th. . . .

At the Spring meeting of the Fordham College Athletic Association, April 23, the following events, all scratch, will be contested: 100-yards dash, 290-yards dash, 240-yards dash, shopyards run, mile run, mile walk, high jump, pole vault, broad jump, putting shot, throwing nammer. The only events open to all colleges are the 100-yards dash and mile run.

Horsemen and breeders are anxiously awaiting the opening of the sale of equine stock to be held next Wednesday and Thursday at the American Institute Building. Some very choice trotters will be there, notably the progeny of Kentucky Wilkes.

The largest amount of money ever offered for a horse is $55,000, offered by Leland Stanford for Kentucky Prince. It was refused.

Amsteur billiardists are much interested in the third annual tournament for the champion-ship of the United States, to be held at the Racquet Club. It commences May 15. Entries close April 30.

Mr. F. A. Ware, President of the National Cross-Country Association, writes as follows: "Your article on the cross-country question in the sporting column of The Evenino Wondow of Wednosday was correct excent in one essential particular. You stated that the "Cross-Country Association that Mr. Hulli presides over had secured an injunction, &c. That is just what they want and have been vainly trying to get for six months."

Jack Dempsey is anxious to meet Johnny Reagan, to battle for the $3,000 purse offered by the California Athetic Club. He refuses to fight for less, as, from a table of expenses submitted to the Police Gazetts, he shows that in his fight with Beagan for $1,000 a side the total amount which he received after deducting expenses was $65. Dempsey further said that in his opinion Reagan was looking for a little cheap notoriety.

The other women who had been called in attempted to recusitate the child, and finally turned him on his stomach. A small steel screw dropped out of his mouth. It was only an inch long, and was covered with mucous.

The mother searched for a doctor, but not finding one she returned to her apartments. The baby was quiet. She grabbed it up and ran around the corner to the Eastern Dispensary. It was not yet the hour for the doctors to arrive, consequently none were present.

At his moment Dr. Markiewicz, of 251 Broome street, happened to pass, and was called in by the Dispensary druggist.

The child was almost at its last gase, and as a means of affording partial relief the doctor made an incision in its throat to peform trachectomy. It was useless, however, as the child died almost at the time the incision was made.

A pitiful sight met the gaze of The Evening Wonld young man when he called at the apartments this morning.

The young mother was wandering around and wailing in a heartrending tone. The old grandmother was grief-stricken. Several neighbors who were in the room were also crying.

The little one will be buried in the Hebrew Cemetery on Long Island.
